VERONIKA MUCHITSCH

Cyberman

Ari lives in Finland but rarely leaves his apartment or has any visitors. He spends his days sleeping or sitting in front of the computer, chatting to his viewers and playing music on YouTube, streaming his life online 24/7.

For over a year Muchitsch watched Ari's live stream on Cyberman.tv. He was unaware of her project, but she interacted with him through anonymous online conversations using the pseudonym L.B. Jefferies – a reference to the protagonist of Alfred Hitchcock's 'Rear Window', who watches his neighbours across the courtyard – and embracing the analogy of Muchitsch's own voyeurism. Cyberman is isolated in a frame on his stream as well as in Muchitsch's beautifully painted panels on the page.

The author also sits alone, in front of her computer screen, as she watches Ari through a frame and documents his life.

Veronika Muchitsch was born in Graz, Austria, and now lives in Falmouth, Cornwall. She received an MA at Falmouth University in 2017. Her stories have been published by Fantagraphics and she was winner of the 2017 Atlantic Press Graphic Literature Prize.

Updated with new preface

Master manipulator or gangster? The malign thrust of Putin's domestic and foreign policy is exposed in this page-turning biography that spans his early life, political career, the wars in Chechnya, Crimea and the Ukraine, the crackdown on human rights, Brexit, Trump, and the poisonings.

Author of more than six acclaimed graphic novels and well-known for his shrewd analysis, Cunningham shows how the West and its leaders have been culpable in aiding Putin's rise – Obama being a particular example. Areas covered include: Brexit and Trump; the crackdown on human rights, especially on homosexuality in Russia; and the poisonings – among them, journalist Anna Politkovskaya in Russia, Alexander Litvinenko in London, Sergei Skripal in Salisbury.

Cunningham shows us an opportunistic gangster, rather than a master manipulator, and how we need to demythologise Putin if we are to beat him.

Lisa Allen-Agostini The Bread the Devil Knead

This rich, raw and urgent domestic noir novel of sex and survival in Trinidad heralds an exciting new voice in feminist fiction.

Alethea Lopez is about to turn 40. Fashionable, feisty and fiercely independent, she manages a boutique in Port of Spain, but behind closed doors she's covering up bruises from her abusive partner and seeking solace in an affair with her boss.

When she witnesses a woman murdered by a jealous lover, the reality of her own future comes a little too close to home.

Bringing us her truth in an arresting, unsparing Trinidadian voice, Alethea unravels memories repressed since childhood and begins to understand the person she has become.

Her next step is to decide the woman she wants to be.

Yvonne Bailey-Smith

The Day I Fell Off My Island

Jamaica, 1968: Erna Mullings' life is near perfect, living in a remote village with her beloved grandparents. That is, until the day her three younger siblings are torn from the family home and taken to London to live with their biological father. Now, the world that Erna knows is set to change irrevocably.

A compelling coming-of-age novel based on the author's own experiences, The Day I Fell Off My Island is engrossing, courageous and psychologically insightful. Uniquely it bears witness to life Erna's life in Jamaica as well as her new life in London.

Yvonne Bailey-Smith writes with great warmth and humanity about reluctant immigration and the relationship between children and the people who parent them. Hers is a story of estrangement, transition and, ultimately, the triumph of resilience and hope.

Yvonne Bailey-Smith was born in Jamaica and came to the UK as a teenager. She trained and worked first as a social worker before becoming a psychotherapist. She is also a Water Aid Supporter and passionate about providing clean water and sanitation in developing countries. She is the mother of three children: novelist Zadie Smith; actor, musician and children's book author Ben Bailey Smith; and lyricist and writer LucSkyz.

Sabba Khan

The Roles We Play

Khan's eloquent minimal style and architectural page design illuminate her experiences of growing up as a second generation Azad Kashmiri migrant in East London.

Sabba Khan's debut graphic memoir explores themes of identity, belonging and memory within the East London Pakistani Muslim diaspora. Her unfolding collection of true stories paint a vivid snapshot of contemporary British Asian life and the complex generational shifts experienced within migrant communities today.

Issues of race, gender and class are brought to the fore in a simple and personal narrative. The title of the book nods to the questions Khan explores: can religion and secularism, tradition and trend, heritage and progression move beyond a limited binary framework and towards a pluralistic common space of love and understanding?

Sabba Khan is an architectural designer, artist and maker. She is an advocate of increasing working class black and brown representation in the arts and publishing, as well as in architecture and construction. She is one half of architectural practice Khan Bonshek.

Ian Williams The Sick Doctor

'The best thing to happen to medicine since penicillin.'

Alison Bechdel

'This book had me hooked from the start. Yes, it was indeed accessible and eminently readable, but be warned, it is hard to put down. The only reason it took me more than one sitting to devour it is that I had my own patients to attend to as well.'

Dr Patricia Cantley, PULSE, on reading The Lady Doctor

The final instalment of Ian William's highly popular trilogy about life in a general practice tells us the story of Dr Robert Smith, the senior partner at Llangandida Health Centre, practicing spiritualist and thorn in the side of his partners Dr Iwan James and Dr Lois Pritchard.

Robert is an 'old school' GP who feels he has seen out the golden years of general practice and despairs at the new rules of engagement with patients, employees, people with disabilities, vegetarians, trans people and, particularly, women.

Not known for his bedside manner, he has one eye on the budget, and another out for the main chance. He is reluctantly playing the role of 'new dad', pitching in with the childcare and changing nappies for the first time in his life. But while he rejoices in proving his fertility in middle age, an unexpected diagnosis forces him to reassess his priorities in this funny, topical follow-up to The Bad Doctor and The Lady Doctor (see p.40)

Majid Adin

Hamid & Shakespeare

'The story of two people from different worlds colliding and finding that despite, or perhaps because of, their differences, they need each other. It's a rip-roaring adventure that sees England and Hamid's homeland seen through the eyes of newcomers. And it is this new lens, new perspective, new energy that we are so desperately in need of.'

Good Chance Theatre

A chance spotting of a poster advertising Shakespeare's 400th centenary spurs a refugee to imagine himself transported from his detention cell onto the streets of London and through to a performance at the Globe Theatre.

As we move between the 21st and 16th centuries, Shakespeare introduces Hamid to a promised land and to a series of well-known plays, each of which help him to relate his own experiences – of interrogation and of his journey from home: crossing the sea, getting lost in the forest, his months spent in the Calais 'jungle', and his arrival in the UK.

Shakespeare and Hamid become the guides to each other's worlds, both as father and son, and teacher and student, in a relationship of humour, exasperation and great humanity.

Majid Adin is an Iranian artist and animator who was imprisoned and his work destroyed after it offended the authorities. It wasn't until ten years later that he took up the pen again, as a refugee in the Calais jungle. He arrived in the UK in a refrigerated van and, in 2018, his animation won a competition to accompany Elton John's 'Rocket Man'. He lives in West Hampstead.

Elizabeth Haynes You, Me & the Sea

Compelling, moving and teeming with feral desire – a contemporary story of love and redemption from the bestselling author of Into the Darkest Corner and The Murder of Harriet Monckton.

Rachel is at crisis point. A series of disastrous decisions has left her with no job, no home, and no faith in herself. But an unexpected job offer takes her to a remote Scottish island, and it feels like a chance to recover and mend her battered self-esteem.

The island's other inhabitants are less than welcoming. Fraser Sutherland is a taciturn loner who is not happy about sharing his lighthouse – or his precious coffee beans – and Lefty, his unofficial assistant, is a scrawny, scared lad who isn't supposed to be there at all.

Homesick and out of her depth, Rachel wonders whether she's made another mistake. But, as spring turns to summer, the wild beauty of the island captivates her soul.

Zara Slattery

Coma

In May 2013 Zara Slattery's persistent sore throat failed to respond to the paracetamol and ice pack prescribed by her GP. Instead it turned into a deadly bacterial infection.

The world of Zara's 15-day drug-induced coma, which she describes as 'being trapped in a nightmare state that you can't wake up from' is rendered as a full-colour fantasy, with mythological creatures appearing out of nowhere as she battles to protect her three children against the forces of evil that threaten to engulf her. Meanwhile, her husband Dan tries to keep family life going as he faces the most difficult task of all: preparing the children for the likely loss of their mother. His diary, and that of the nurses in the Intensive Care Unit, who kept a record of Zara's illness, interweave to make a heartbreaking graphic memoir.

Coma is an exploration of the mind's response to trauma. It is an urgent call for awareness of the symptoms of severe infection that can lead to life-threatening sepsis. And, above all, it is a love story.

A roadmap of recovery and transformation, this is the story of becoming heroic in a culture which doesn't see heroism in the shape of a girl.

At the age of 20, after a traumatic sexual assault trial, Kathryn Heyman ran away from her life and became a deckhand on a fishing trawler in the Timor Sea.

Coming from a family of poverty and violence, she had no real role models, no example of how to create or live a decent life, how to have hope or expectations. But she was a reader. She understood story, and the power of words to name the world. This was to become her salvation.

After one wild season on board the Ocean Thief, the only girl among tough working men, facing storms, treachery and harder physical labour than she had ever known, Heyman was transformed. Finally she could name the abuses she thought had broken her. After a period of enforced separation from the world, she was able to return to it newly formed, determined to remake the role she'd been born into.

Tammye Huf

A More Perfect Union

Based on the true story of the author's great-great-grandparents, this is an epic tale of love and courage, desperation and determination.

Henry O'Toole sails to America in 1848 to escape poverty and famine in Ireland, only to find anti-Irish prejudice awaiting him. Determined never to starve again, he changes his surname to Taylor and heads south to Virginia, seeking work as a travelling blacksmith on the prosperous plantations.

Sarah is a slave. Torn from her family and sold to Jubilee Plantation, she must navigate the hierarchy of her fellow slaves, the whims of her white masters, and now the attentions of the mysterious blacksmith.

Fellow slave Maple oversees the big house with bitterness and bile, and knows that a white man's attention spells trouble. Given to her half-sister as a wedding present by their white father, she is set on being reunited with her husband and daughter, at any cost.

Tammye Huf is a former teacher, and now works as a translator and copywriter. Her short stories have been published in various magazines, including Diverse Voices Quarterly and The Penmen Review. She was runner-up in the 2018 London Magazine Short Story Prize. Florian Grosset

The Chagos Betrayal

How Britain robbed an island and made its people disappear

A compelling graphic essay telling the story of the Chagos islanders, their eviction by the UK and their continuing fight to return to their land in the Indian Ocean.

Between 1965 and 1973 the inhabitants of the Chagos archipelago were forcibly removed from their homeland and dumped in Mauritius and Seychelles. Diego Garcia, the largest island in the group, was leased to the USA by the United Kingdom to accommodate the largest US military air base outside the US mainland.

Florian Grosset's account of the eviction, and the harsh life faced by the Chagossians after their displacement, looks back to the first generation of slaves who arrived on the archipelago and the lives of their descendants. It charts the present-day diaspora of Chagossians, and their fight for the right to return through protests and court cases, and the different strategies still being used to keep them away from their land.

Florian Grosset is a graphic designer and illustrator living in Kent. She was born and grew up in Mauritius.

A love story in the slow lane about loss and getting lost – two childhood sweethearts take a trip via pints, ponds and pitstops to find their future on a road less travelled from Stoke-on-Trent to Wales.

'Funny, moving, philosophical and wise. A road trip through life, loss, and the murky depths of the human heart. Utterly charming and utterly hilarious.'

Emma Jane Unsworth

One Monday afternoon, around three o'clock, pond supplies salesman Selwyn Robby arrives home towing the Toogood Aquatics exhibition caravan and orders his like-wife, Imogen 'Ginny' Dare, to get into the car. He's taking her on a little holiday, he says. To Wales

So begins their road trip west, via blasts from Selwyn's past, and a fortnight's journey of self-discovery for them both. But it's a fishy business towing this caravan, with its saucy mermaid curtains and fully stocked bar, and Ginny must untangle the pondweed to get to the bottom of it, even if it does mean unearthing her own murky past.

Your Still Beating Heart

All it takes to change a life is a single moment. A random stabbing in London leaves a young woman widowed, and cut off from her previous life.

As a way of coping, she books a spontaneous trip to Prague, the city where she and her husband became engaged. A chance meeting leads to an intriguing proposition. There's a small job for someone like her: someone without a criminal record or personal connections; someone willing to take a minor risk. All she needs to do is pick something up, and drive back. Just once. Only ever once.

Her mission takes her to a place where life is cheap and sordid deals are done. Risking her own life to save another, she must now outrun those who would betray them.

Taut and chilling with an ingenious twist, this intense thriller is as revealing in its psychological acuity as it is in its portrait of organised crime.

Edited by Margaret Busby New Daughters of Africa

Published to international acclaim, this landmark anthology celebrates the work of 200 women writers of African descent and charts a literary landscape as never before.

From Angola to the USA, overlooked artists of the past join key figures, popular contemporaries and emerging writers in paying tribute to the heritage that unites them, the links that endure from generation to generation, and their common obstacles around issues of race, gender and class.

With contributions from Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie, Patience Agbabi, Malorie Blackman, Edwidge Danticat, Esi Edugyan, Bernardine Evaristo, Roxane Gay, Karen Lord, Warsan Shire, Zadie Smith and a host of other literary stars, the anthology includes memoir, short stories, speeches, novel extracts, poetry and journalism to demonstrate the diversity and remarkable literary achievements of writers whose works continue to be under-rated today.

The Murder of Harriet Monckton

From the bestselling author of Into the Darkest Corner comes a delicious Victorian crime novel based on a real murder.

On 7 November 1843, the body of 23-year-old Harriet Monckton is found behind a chapel in Bromley, Kent. The community is appalled by her death, apparently as a result of swallowing acid, and even more so when the surgeon reports that Harriet was six months pregnant.

Drawing on the coroner's reports and witness testimonies, Elizabeth Haynes builds a compelling picture of Harriet's final hours through the eyes of the last people to see her alive. Her friend and fellow teacher, her would-be fiancé, her seducer, and her former lover—all are suspects, and each has a reason to want her dead.

Brimming with lust, mistrust and guilt, The Murder of Harriet Monckton is a masterclass of suspense from one of our greatest crime writers.

Elizabeth Haynes is a former police intelligence analyst whose debut novel, Into the Darkest Corner, was Amazon's Best Book of the Year, a New York Times bestseller and published in 37 countries. Myriad publishes Haynes' other psychological thrillers (see opposite). She has also written two police procedural crime novels, Under a Silent Moon and Behind Closed Doors. Her latest novel is You, Me & the Sea (see p.3).

Lisa Blower

It's Gone Dark Over Bill's Mother's

With a sharp eye and tough warmth, Lisa Blower strikes a new chord in regional and working-class fiction.

In this award-winning collection of short stories, Lisa Blower makes the bleak funny as she brings to life the silent histories and harsh realities of those living on the margins through a fearsome array of unforgettable matriarchs (see also p.10).

'Her stories are at times the laugh-out-loud funny of Alan Bennett and at others, the achingly sad of the great, David Constantine.'

The Heartsick Diaspora

Set in different cities around the world, these acutely observed, wry and playful stories explore lives torn between cultures and people juggling divided selves.

A brother searches for his sister forced to serve as a comfort woman during World War Two; three Singaporean sisters run a gourmet French restaurant in New York; a woman raps about being a Tiger Mother in Belgravia. Chiew's stories are as worldly and emotionally resonant as the characters themselves.

The Bead Collector

A brief but profound friendship between two women—a Nigerian and an American—recasts the international espionage tale by bringing the politics of family life to the fore.

Lagos, January 1976: a new military regime is in power, but rumours are spreading that a counter-coup is imminent. Remi's husband suspects her new friend, the American art dealer Frances, of gathering intelligence for the CIA. But Remi is unconvinced until an assassination forces her to reconsider one particular conversation and whether the bead collector is really who she claims to be.

Charlotte Amelia Poe

How To Be Autistic

This urgent, funny, shocking and impassioned memoir by the winner of the 2018 Spectrum Art Prize presents the rarely shown point of view of someone living with autism.

For Charlotte, autism is a fundamental aspect of their identity and art. They address their reader in a voice that is direct, sharply clever and ironic, and all the while challenging the neurotypical narratives of autism as something to be 'fixed'.

As we follow Charlotte's journey through school and college, we become as awestruck by their extraordinary passion for life as by the enormous privations that they must undergo to live it.

Nicholas Royle

Mother: A Memoir

A portrait of family life, a mother-son relationship and bereavement.

Before the devastating 'loss of her marbles', Mrs Royle, a nurse by profession, is a marvellously no-nonsense character, an autodidact who reads widely and voraciously, swears at her fox-hunting neighbours, and instils in the young Nick a love of literature and of wildlife that will form his character and his career.

At once poetic and philosophical, this extraordinary memoir is also a powerful reflection on climate crisis and 'mother nature', on literature and life writing, on human and non-human animals, and on the links between the maternal and memory itself.

Edited by Susheila Nasta Brave New Words

The founder of Wasafiri and longtime campaigner for diversity in literature brings together 15 writers to explore the value of critical thinking, the power of the written word, and the resonance of literature in the twenty-first century.

With contributors including Bernardine Evaristo, Romesh Gunesequera, James Kelman, Kei Miller, Blake Morrison, Olumide Popoola and Marina Warner, Brave New Words imagines writing across shifting and troubled borders, and diverse possibilities for living, working and belonging together.

'Literature is plurality in action; it embraces and celebrates a place of no truths; it relishes ambiguity, and it deeply respects the place where everybody has the right to be understood.'

Cynthia Enloe
The Big Push

Exposing and challenging the persistence of patriarchy

Leading feminist Cynthia Enloe reveals not only the blatant sexism we can all identify, but also the insidious persistence of particular forms of masculinity and authoritarianism in daily life.

Decades of feminist campaigning have resulted in real advances, and yet patriarchy continues to thrive. Drawing on her own experiences and the lives of women from around the world, Enloe explores the resilience of patriarchal beliefs and values, and identifies the unwitting nature of our complicity.

'This is a manual for taking us to the finishing line of gender equality. A jolt of new energy for longstanding feminists and a "must read" for our new generations.'

The State of the World Atlas

In a world that has been governed by 'fake news', where leaders have dismissed facts, this statistically meticulous presentation of global trends is vitally important to understand today's most challenging issues.

A groundbreaking atlas and milestone of graphic reporting, this latest edition addresses the economic, global health and geopolitical reverberations of Covid-19 throughout.

Other topics for this new 10th edition include:

health • education and gender inequalities • human rights abuses • financial corruption • military might • chemical warfare • plastic waste • climate change

Authored by leading international peace researcher Dan Smith OBE, earlier editions have been widely praised and sold over 800,000 copies in different languages around the world.

Jenny Robins

Biscuits (Assorted)

It's summer in the city with a vibrant cast of women living and loving in London. Only connect...the walls are very thin.

Like every city London is teeming with diverse, beautiful, messy, incongruous life, and every face seen fleetingly in the crowd carries a story or two. Some are sad, some are funny, some are boring, but none is ever quite as you would guess.

Jenny Robins introduces us to some of these women's stories as they defy and comply with our expectations, and as they step out of the cookie-cutter mould of what it means to be a woman today.

What can a relentlessly positive supermarket employee, a strong-minded mother with a secret, a mistress of distraction (and oversharing), and a miss-adventurer in bisexual dating do during one long, hot summer? What can they learn from each other and from the colourful cast of women (and the occasional man) in this book of interwoven stories?

Jenny Robins is an illustrator, comics artist and teacher. She has a BA in Illustration and an MA in Art and Design Education. She now lives in London. She has contributed to comics including Dirty Rotten Comics, Solipsistic Pop, Over the Line and Meanwhile, and reviews for Broken Frontier. An extract from Biscuits won the 2018 Myriad First Graphic Novel Competition.

Hannah Eaton Blackwood

Set in a rural middle England, this beautifully drawn murder mystery reveals the dark soul of a town where local politics and the human heart conspire to preserve its way of life—at almost any cost.

Two murders with uncanny echoes of each other, despite being 65 years apart, have taken place in the ancient woodland beside Blackwood. Evidence and local lore suggest overtones of ritual or of the occult, but despite thorough police investigations, no charges are made.

Peg and her great-grandson, 11-year-old Mason, hold clues to the town's secrets but no-one wants to listen to a woman in her nineties with dementia or to a child.

Hannah Eaton deftly handles her cast of townspeople with warmth, humour and humanity, reserving special sympathy for the outsiders—both victims and investigators—who dare to penetrate the community's closed doors.

Kate Charlesworth

Sensible Footwear

This beautifully drawn political and personal history, by one of Britain's best-known cartoonists, charts a moving and often funny story of coming out, friendships, love and loss within a pageant of LGBTQI+ celebration.

In 1950, when Kate was born, male homosexuality carried a custodial sentence. But female homosexuality had never been an offence in the UK, effectively rendering lesbians even more invisible than they already were—often to themselves. Growing up in Yorkshire, the young Kate had to find role models wherever she could, in life, books, film and TV.

Sensible Footwear is a fascinating history of how post-war Britain transformed from a country hostile to 'queer' lives into the LGBTQI+ universe of today, recording the political milestones against a backdrop of personal experience. Kate's dad said to her: 'I've seen a bit more of life than your mum. You shouldn't have told her, love...you should have just told me.' But that turned out to be not quite the full story...

Kate Charlesworth is a cartoonist and illustrator originally from Yorkshire and now living in Edinburgh. After studying in Manchester, she moved to London and became part of the 'golden age' of queer publishing. Her strips have appeared in The Guardian, New Scientist and elsewhere. She illustrated the acclaimed graphic novel Sally Heathcote, Suffragette.

Carol Isaacs (The Surreal McCoy) The Wolf of Baghdad

In the 1940s a third of Baghdad's population was Jewish. Within a decade nearly all 150,000 of Iraq's Jews had been expelled or killed, or had escaped.

Transported by the power of music to her ancestral home in the old Jewish quarter of Baghdad, this graphic memoir of a lost homeland is a wordless narrative by an author homesick for a home she has never visited. It is illuminated by the words and portraits of her family, and a brief history of Baghdadi Jews.

Darryl Cunningham

Billionaires

This is a book about what made Trump possible. The richest 1% in our society has a cast-iron grip on politics and the media—a vastly disproportionate political and cultural influence that has led to cruelty, racism, misogyny, xenophobia and environmental destruction.

The 'super-rich' are often portrayed as self-made, as if their wealth was created entirely by their own efforts. But is this true? Who are these people? And what are their lives like?

In his latest book of graphic analysis, celebrated author Darryl Cunningham examines the evidence through the lives and careers of media baron Rupert Murdoch, oil and gas tycoons Charles and David Koch, and Amazon founder Jeff Bezos. He explores how each has enjoyed advantages beyond any personal ability or attributes to aid their success. And he asks whether these men are today's equivalent of Rockefeller, Carnegie, J.P. Morgan and Vanderbilt—or are even more pernicious.

Darryl Cunningham is the award-winning author of six works of graphic nonfiction, including Psychiatric Tales, Science Tales, Supercrash (a New York Times bestseller), and Graphic Science. His new book is Russia's Putin (see p.17). He lives in Yorkshire.

The Lady Doctor

Practising GP Ian Williams delivers another humane, pertinent and very funny look at life in a Welsh surgery with the second in the series of his warts-and-all comedy drama.

Drugs – prescription, recreational, legal – and the behaviours and attitudes surrounding them are a hot topic at the health centre where Dr Lois Pritchard (single, 40 and 'not very good with relationships') works alongside Drs Iwan James and Robert Smith. But when her estranged mother turns up and demands a liver transplant, Lois has to make some tough decisions.

Olivier Kugler

Escaping War and Waves

Award-winning German artist Olivier Kugler spent more than three years collecting the stories of families who have fled Syria.

Based on many interviews, mainly conducted for Médecins Sans Frontières, photographs and sketches, Kugler talked to Syrian refugees as they journeyed to Iraqi Kurdistan, the Greek island of Kos and the Calais 'Jungle'. His beautifully observed drawings brings to life their locations and objects, as the stories he tells, often tragic but also uplifting, stand as testimony to both human senselessness and resilience.
